

Passion.

Growing up, my role models were my sisters Keelia and Meghan. Following in their footsteps, I explored Europe after high school, attended Oregon State University (OSU) for college, and of course fought fire in the summers as a U.S. Forest Service (USFS) employee. As the youngest, doing what they did was the simplest way to be like them. All of us give 100% to everything we do and giving back is one of our highest priorities.

Education.

Growing up, my role models were my sisters Keelia and Meghan. Following in their footsteps, I explored Europe after high school, attended Oregon State University (OSU) for college, and of course fought fire in the summers as a U.S. Forest Service (USFS) employee. As the youngest, doing what they did was the simplest way to be like them. All of us give 100% to everything we do and giving back is one of our highest priorities.

TMI Action

What's in a name? Many might see TMI and think "Too Much Information", which is what I love about it. Seems like the perfect segue into in-depth conversations about sexual harassment, equity, inclusion, and discrimination. I might have unintentionally founded my company, but the mission is intentional. TMI Action Transforms, Motivates, and Inspires individuals to take ACTION.